

(For those of you who have watched porn, you will probably understand all this. My proclivity deals mostly with busty Asian women, which means I have to deal with a special problem: )

Japanese Porn

If you don't know, Japanese porn is unique . A Google search will show you what I mean. In one click you'll find that all of the male genitalia has been censored, and the common penis is now just a fuzzy glob in a bad skin flick.

That's right, all adult films from the Land of the Rising Cum are brutally censored and the dicks are intentionally obscured - the faceless heads pixelated like a flesh-colored Rubik's cube. The result is a strange and useless smut that comes off like a crime documentary where the suspect penis is being interrogated by the cops, but his identity must be hidden for some reason.

So why are oriental pornographers smudging these shafts in nearly every X-rated film? Is it to obscure the identity of the cock star? Seems arrogant that Asian studs think they're that special – could they even pick out their own joystick in a police line-up? I think not, and I'm fairly certain none of the pricks I've seen are in 'penis witness protection program' either.

(I just had a frightening thought – what if Asian dicks are actually fuzzy, like a dandelion? I couldn't handle that kind of Dr. Suess reality – I assume this is NOT the case!)

Anyways, I got curious and I looked it up. Apparently, there's a 'morality law' from the pruders on this island nation that dictates local porn producers can't show an untreated cock.

Not uncircumcised. Not unsheathed. No cocks allowed – well, no plain cocks allowed. What hippocrits! - Morality from the same culture that brought us cum bukkakes, uniformed schoolgirl fetishes and tentacle porn. Really?

After I thought about this for a while, a few simple realities about it unnerved me. For example, with all this 'dick redaction' going on this must be someone's job, right? And who assigns this kind of work? Or worse, who APPROVES your prick hazing work? What are raises based on? Is there profit sharing, how does that work? The mind boggles.

Plus, there's got to be a cock blurring sweatshop on the outskirts of Tokyo somewhere - What might that be called?

Erection Erasers? Willy Wipers? Pecker Obscura? Phallus Fuzzers? I could go on, but I'll spare you. Just Google "Trouser Snake Decapitation Services" for a full listing.

Look, I think we're all perverts in some way so who am I to judge? But whenever you're the ONLY culture doing something like this – it says a lot. Either you're a genius pioneer OR a misguided moralist with some daddy issues as a society. Maybe Asian policy makers should consider what removing the penis from the sex act says about their culture. Or maybe the culture should give the policy makers a second look – and make sure THESE dicks aren't obscured.